DRESS IN SENEGAL

Director(s): Delphine DELOGET, Stéphane CORRÉA

Writer(s): Delphine DELOGET, Stéphane CORREA

If Senegalese women are so elegant, it's because they want to make sure to keep their polygamous husbands close by and their most infallible weapon is known as the "petit pagne"... For young women, jeans are the very symbol of emancipation and equality of the sexes.

But dress is not just for the living. Dress is important even beyond death. Tradition demands that new clothes are offered to the dead so that when they get to heaven, they will be elegant when appearing before God. And if you want to know what the President is going to say, you'll be better advised to look at what he's wearing - traditional boubou or suit - than to listen to his speech.

We'll also meet the B-Boys in their fashionable hip-hop outfits. They are fascinated by the American dream and the promise of a better future, somewhere, a future they are going to find even at the peril of their lives...

Categorie(s): Discovery & Nature, Travel, Sport & Adventure, Collections - Series

Tag(s): Ethnography/Civilization, Fashion, people & places

Producer(s): POINT DU JOUR

Coproducer(s): ARTE France

Length: 1x26 / Format: One-off

Original version: French

Versions available: International

Nationality: France, 2008

Rights: all media, world

Support(s): SD â€“ Digital 16/9

http://www.pointdujour-international.com/catalogueFiche.php?idFiche=38131&lang=en