SWIMMING ELEPHANTS

Director(s): Jean-Claude LUYAT

Writer(s): Jean-Claude LUYAT

An exotic paradise in the Gulf of Bengal, south of Burma, the thickly forested Andaman Islands possess important natural resources.
In places where no machine can get through, men and elephants contribute to the exploitation of these resources with a constant concern not to upset nature¹s order, thus ensuring the regeneration of the forest.

A special bond unites the elephant and its mahout, driver, who cares for the animal until its death. They both tour the archipelago, swimming from one island to the other - not always an easy exercise!

AVAILABLE FOR VIEWING: Original French version only.

Categorie(s): Discovery & Nature
Tag(s): Nature, Travel, Discovery/Adventure, Wildlife

Producer(s): POINT DU JOUR
Coproducer(s): FRANCE 2, RAI TRE
Length: 1x52 / Format: One-off
Original version: French
Versions available: English / International
Nationality: France, 1999
Rights: world

Support(s): SD - Beta SP

http://www.pointdujour-international.com/catalogueFiche.php?idFiche=5067&lang=en