

HAWAI - SURFING

Director(s): Nicolas GLIMOIS

True enough, there are huge waves in Hawaii. But the same can be said about Australia, California, Argentina, Mexico or many other places. So why is that surf found its origins off the coast of Honolulu? It goes back to the Polynesians of Maui who practised an initiation rite on the towering waves of the equinox. Those who successfully passed the test were the kings of the discipline. Non-Polynesians attended the ceremony and, ever since, Hawaii has become the home of surf.
